

x.news information technology is a highly innovative start-up based in Pinkafeld, Austria. We have developed a cutting-edge story research tool for journalists and are now in the process of establishing x.news™, our flagship product, in the market.

We are currently looking for a SOFTWARE DEVELOPER to support our team

Responsibilities:

- Development of existing web applications in Java and HTML5/JavaScript
- Collaboration with a team of agile software developers
- Analysis, design, implementation, test, deployment and monitoring – you will be a part of the whole development process

Skills and qualifications:

- Successfully completed education (Technical College HTL, University of Applied Sciences, University) with emphasis on software development
- Knowledge of Java, HTML, JavaScript, SQL
- Ability to work independently, goal oriented and flexible is critical, so is analytical thinking as well as high willingness to perform and hands-on mentality
- Experience in NLP (Natural Language Processing) and Semantic Networks
- Knowledge of English is essential

We offer:

- Participation in an international company
- Long-term employment on a full-time basis
- The opportunity of joining a dynamic team
- Varied and challenging responsibilities

On the basis of full-time employment, we offer a monthly gross income starting from €2.984 (14 months per year) as well as the possibility of overpayment, depending on qualifications and professional experience.

Please send your detailed application to Markus Prochazka

Markus Prochazka
+43 664 88872892
markus.prochazka@x-news.eu